20 DROWNED His Business Manager o 0000000000000000000

By ELIZABETH FOX. [Copyright, 1999, by American Press Asso-ciation.]

Edgar Trask was born with a gift. It was not the gift of money making, but the gift of producing that which if properly handled may lead to such desirable result. No: Mr. Trask was not directly a money maker. He was RAMMED BY BATTLESHIP a playwright and had produced some pretty good plays, but he had no bustness instincts that would lead him to get out what there was in them. He In Black Sex Evolutions-Kambala Was had sold several of them without having made a written contract. The profits on them had been considerable, but they never got into the author's pockets. Then be sold a couple more for which he made contracts, but did not think to examine his copy of them. One the purchaser hadn't signed; the other was so drawn that the author was easily beaten out of his royalty. He hadn't even business sense or en-
